Reform and the winter service advantage

In Australia, the Reform municipal tool carrying tractors are primarily utilised in the mowing of steep banks/hillsides on soft ground conditions where stability and safety is paramount. These hillside tractors are ideal for mowing embankments, steep terrain, open areas such as golf courses and all other general green area maintenance.

However, while the primary application is the most popular among municipalities and contractors around Australia, the Reform tool carrying, all-terrain tractors are also versatile enough to be used during the winter months around Australia's expansive and popular tourist hotspots; the ski resorts and snow fields.

In Europe, for example, the Reform tool carrying tractors enjoy a full 12-month duty cycle, with the more familiar green/grounds care and roadways maintenance we are used to in Australia, but with an added winter season of use that includes a full change of attachments, making the Reform tractor a solid and thoroughly capable snow clearing and sweeping machine.

In Austria, home to Reform, the brand is a household name. You don't buy a snow plough and bobcat with hydro-drive sweeper for winter and a conventional tractor with flail mower, and truck with collection container for summer; you simply buy one machine, a Reform tractor, and quick-fit the attachments you need to suit the job at hand, no matter what time of year. With front and rear linkage and PTO, you can tackle two job passes at once. The economic and time-saving benefits are astronomical.

Combining the Reform Metrac or Mounity tractor with a variable front snow plough, allows clearing of road and other public surfaces at various angles. Additionally, a sweeper can be fitted to clear up any remaining snow. Tried and tested in tough sub-zero conditions overseas, for over thirty years, the two-axle all-terrain tractors are the pinnacle of their class.

Use of specially matched implements ensures a high level of performance and economy, all-year-round. In the wet and in the dry, in the heat and in the snow, with an outstanding ability to cope with slopes and difficult terrain without damaging the ground below, high manoeuvrability, stability and low centre of gravity ensure safe working conditions throughout.

Truly, the Reform series is the most versatile, multi-function, stable and secure tool carrying tractor range in the world.

Reform. Changing the way you think about your fleet.
